

Our college monitors digital systems, including email, internet usage, and device access, to support security, ensure compliance with institutional policies, and maintain operational integrity. Monitoring is limited to work related activity and roles with authorized access. Users are informed of monitoring practices during onboarding, through system login banners, and in the Acceptable Use Policy. Personal communications are not actively reviewed unless legally required or triggered by a formal investigation. Consent is implied through continued use of organizational systems after notice is provided.

Only data necessary for operational security, compliance, or investigations is collected. Access to monitoring data is restricted to authorized personnel trained in data protection and confidentiality. Monitoring records are retained for 30 days, unless extended due to ongoing investigations or legal obligations. After this period, data is securely deleted. Individuals may request clarification or appeal monitoring related concerns by contacting the IT help desk via the formal grievance process. Any misuse of systems or violation of policy may lead to access restrictions and appropriate disciplinary measures.
