

The event held on April 7th displayed multiple challenges as well as a few positive outcomes for our group. One of the biggest issues we faced was the lack of communication leading up to the event. We were asked to provide material on Phishing awareness at the last minute and the host provided us with very little information or instructions about the expectations. Due to this, some of the materials were not distributed in a timely manner. It was also unclear if we were expected to be at the event presenting our material or handing it out. Despite these issues, we did have some positive outcomes as well. Our posters, pamphlets, and fliers turned out to be phenomenal and the collaboration during the making process made them turn out this way. To our knowledge these will still be used around campus in the near future. Next time, sooner communication with clear instruction, would allow us more time to prepare and send the material out which would help to improve the overall outcome of the event.
